There is an old saying that goes, "The world is waiting for the sunrise" Well, the wait ended for Presbyterian College students on September 1.

With over 1,100 students eager to begin the 1993-1994 academic year, huddled masses rushed to their first day of classes. However, freshman soon realize that the education you receive at Presbyterian College does not end in the classroom. The friendships made, the tradition passed on, and the opportunities presented ensure that PC caters to all aspects of education.

The James H. Thomason Library, named after one of the major donors, has been in use since 1974. With only 80,000 volumes at its opening, the library now contains over 142,000 volumes.

Taking advantage of the wonderful spring day, Sophomore Katherine Jones and Junior Teague Hunter stop to talk in front of the library.

This sign, located on I-385, is a familiar sight to most PC students. PC becomes a "home away from home" for almost everyone who comes here.

The Freshman Orientation Board makes the transistion from home life to college life as easy as possible for all incoming freshman. The barbeque is one of the last events of the day before the parents leave.

Long ago, not far away, Presbyterian College established a tradition of excellence. We did not merely stop here — we expanded this quality to be incorporated into every aspect of life at PC. With three South Carolina Professors of the Year in the past three years, it is evident that excellence is not only present in the activities of the students, but professors as well.

With every sunrise, the windows of May Henderson Wyatt Chapel come to life as light fills the panes.

Sophomore Caty Hopkins and a friend take part in the jello-wrestling activities, sponsored by BACCHUS, BACCHUS is a student-run organization which promotes education about alcohol consupntion for college students.

The alarm sounded, beds were made, and weary-eyed students made their way to their first class. Time spent in class was only one of many ways in which Presbyterian College students spent their time. The number of activities that students find to do is innumerable. Every student can find things they enjoy to do—from spinning their favorite tunes on Radio PC to writing poetry for the literary magazine Figs &

Thistles. This social component of education is greatly taken advantage of by all the students at Presbyterian in one way or another.

Some things about student life at PC have stayed the same throughout the years, while some were new this year. The addition of Inklings, 24 hour dorm locks, and the use of Reynolds as a dormitory were all new components of life after classes this year.

A NEW BEGINNING

Sometime during last summer, all of the freshmen and transfers received a "1993 Freshman Orientation Fact Book". The minds of these newcomers were temporarily put to ease as they read about the Freshman/Transfer Orientation Board or FOB. This group, sponsored by the Student Union Board, was initiated to make students' transition to Presbyterian College less intimidating and Tyler Binney, an FOB group leader, said "Orientation gave the freshmen their first security blanket of friends. However," he added, "I'm not going overwhelming.

to be an FOB leader next year."

"Before I went, I heard it was just like summer camp,", Ginny Cobb said. After pausing for a few moments of thought, Ginny said she "liked the shaving cream part."

Many students were so fatigued by meetings, activities, registration, and moving in, that they failed to get homesick. However, the freshmen do realize how difficult it must have been to plan orientation. Although they were quick to criticize those first few days, they fall short in suggesting improvements for next year. After all, most students had fun regardless of the numerous demands of orientation and adjusting to college life.

BEHIND CLOSED DOORS

It's lam on a Monday night. Many students are tucked away in bed, alarms set to buzz them awake in enough time to throw on some clothes and grab some grits at GDH before their eight o'clock classes. However. not all students are tucked away in their beds dreaming of finding some real mail in their boxes the next day. Two students are sitting in the study lounge eating cold pizza and quizzing each other for one of Dr. Hobbie's New Testament quizzes. But between pepperoni and Paul's letter to the Philippians are snatches of conversation about all of the crazy things that happened over the weekend. Not too far away two friends are running back and forth across the hall trying to find just the right sweater to match with some new green jeans. Over in another dorm, ten or so guys are gathered watching "Beavis and Butthead" on MTV. Several other guys are walking out of the dorm to head to Waffle House to study for a Brit Lit test over a plate of scattered, smothered, and covered.

Some of the best bonding experience at P.C. happens in the dorms after midnight. Sophomore Brian Parrish explains, "One of the reasons I was attracted to PC was because most everyone lives on campus. It makes for a stronger sort of community. At larger schools where people live in apartments and only come on campus for classes they just don't have the same bonding experiences that we do at P.C." Dorm life means having people around 24 hours a day; the advantages of this are endless. Whether you're in great need of study help, a friend to share some food, or someone to talk to, PC students always seem to find it in the dorms.

A new addition to the dorms and on campus housing this year is the transformation of Reynolds Infirmary into a dorm housing eleven girls. While Reynolds has served its purpose by providing beds and living space, many residents feel that it doesn't create the same kind of close atmosphere that the dorms create. Freshman resident of Reynolds, Kipper Edens states, "The infirmary has been an experience in itself. I really feel like I've misses out on dorm life. There are only eleven people over there and it's very sterile. It doesn't feel like home."

With the only real exception being Reynold's Infirmary residents, most students at P.C. really enjoy dorm life. Sophomore Brent McGee elaborates, "It's fun sharing a room and a hall with fraternity brothers. It's nice to have much of my college "family" close by." The family atmosphere of the PC dorms is something that all students enjoy. Whether borrowing clothes, watching movies, eating stale popcorn, listening to CDs or just sharing notes for and upcoming test, P.C. students live dorm life to its fullest. As junior Perry Parker states, "Living in the dorm made going to school at P.C. what it is." - KATHERINE BONNER

ONCE UPON A TIME. . .

Nothing, including rain, could not dampen the mood on this year's homecoming crowd. With approximately 800 alumni returning to campus for the game, the attendance resulted in a grand total of 2,604 at the game. Although the final score of the game was 17-31, the Blue Hose played a great game against Elon's Fighting Christians. "It was a special game and it meant a lot to the players," said senior defensive tackle Joe Moody.

Student Union Board began the Homecoming activities by sponsoring the annual Blue Sox Festival on Friday night. The theme chosen this year was fairy tales. Many organizations, including fraternities, sororities, and religious groups, spent great amounts of time and energy writing and preparing skits. Sigma Sigma Sigma won first place for their Western Skit. Zeta Tau Alpha placed second, and Pi Kappa Phi took third place.

Homecoming representives walked across the muddy field at half-time to await anxiously the announcing of the Homecoming queen. Kathleen Dowd, representing Zeta Tau Alpha, was crowned the 1993 Homecoming queen. Melanie Johnson received the honor of first runner-up while representing Pi Kappa Alpha. Jennifer Fouse, representing Westminister Fellowship, was all smiles as she took her place as second runner-up.

MEDIEVAL MAGIC

The Tradition Continues

From the cheerful incantation of the "Boar's Head Carol" to the lyrical calm of the harp, the twenty-eighth annual Madrigal Dinner Concerts had something to charm everyone with the Christmas spirit. Strolling minstrels, guitarists, a troop of Morris Dancers, and seventeen Madrigal Singers combined efforts and talent to create a night of Medieval madness, and holiday magic.

The dinner concerts were held this year on December 4th and 5th in Greenville Dining Hall. With the help of the choir, volunteers, and the GDH staff, the Dining Hall was transformed for both nights into "The Great Hall," with festive banners, curtains, holly, and candelabras. At the beginning of the evening, guests were greeted and entertained by the Strolling Minstrels, while a dinner of traditional roast and Yorkshire pudding was served. To signal the start of the show, the Boar's Head was presented, (tastetested and approved by Dr. Charles Gaines, PC Choir Director), and each Madrigal pair or trio was introduced by Merlin, the court magician.

The Madrigal Singers, an ensemble chosen from among the PC Choir every year, presented the main musical entertainment of the evening. The Madrigals rehearse all semester for this event, and are adorned for the evening with bright costumes which match the mood and period of the music they sing. The 1993 Madrigal concerts included a variety of madrigals, ranging from songs of sheer folly to melodramatic Italian laments. The variety of songs and lyrics was reflected by gestures, animation, and expression of the singers.

The Madrigal Dinner concerts have become a tradition at PC, as well as in the Clinton community. Students, professors, and local residents all enjoy this festive occasion, which will undoubtedly continue to be an anticipated, fun-filled evening for many Christmases to come. — BRONWYN COLTRANE

A BREAK FROM THE NORM

Winter Conference is a retreat sponsored by Presbyterian College that allows members of different religious organizations to come together. This year's annual conference was January 28-30 at Camp Bethelwood near Rock Hill, SC.

Each year the weekend gathering hosts a speaker who leads dicussions. Thomas G. Long, professor of preaching and worship at Princeton Theological Seminary, lead discussions on "Hearing a Call, Hearing a Cry, Hearing a Promise: Being People of Faith in a Bored and Crazy World". Long is a graduate of Erskine College, Erskine Theological Seminary, and Princeton Theological Seminary. In addition to his duties at Princeton, he preaches regularly and conducts workshops on preaching and worship throughout the United States. Along with serving as editors of the journal Theology Today, Long is the author of 7 books and more than 40 articles for books and journals.

The Winter Conference Retreat began in 1969 to help different religious affiliations understand and concentrate on their similarities. instead of dwelling on their differences. There are also plenty of fun things to do on the retreat other than the discussions. Participants have the opportunity to canoe, take hay rides, square dance, try their hand at beating Dr. Burnside at pingpong, eat ice cream, and take part in other enjoyable activites as well. - KIM RABON

POGO STICK JAM

What do pogo sticks, good food, and formal gowns have in common? All these things and more were part of this year's Winter Formal. The 93-94 Winter Formal marks the 5th anniversary for this SUB sponsored event. Winter Formal was held on Friday, March 18th, and was held in Springs Campus Center. Nearly 300 P.C. students and their dates crowded into Close Arena to listen to the popular band Uncle Mingo. They are a favorite at the fraternity houses. Additional entertainment was provided by VIP Video sets.

DJ's who jammed between

Winter Formal began in 1989 in order to provide a formal for Greeks and non-Greeks alike. During its first 3 years, Winter Formal struggled to get students to attend. The last two Winter Formals have experienced increased attendance which guarantees a place in P.C.'s tradition. SUB's main purpose is to provide entertainment for all members of the P.C. family and with the passing years, Winter Formal is expected to grow. "We had the best time ever, and look forward to next year," commented Tracey Todd and David Gant. — WARREN SLOANE.

HOME AWAY FROM HOME

Glitz, glitter, songs, and fun. These are just a few words that could describe P.C.'s Fall Rush for women. Throughout the Fall Semester, P.C.'s sororities, Alpha Delta Pi, Sigma Sigma Sigma, and Zeta Tau Alpha had Spring Rush signups for any female interested. By the end of the semester, 117 girls signed up for rush. Rush basically means an opportunity to visit each sorority and find which one best suits you. Rush can be a great way to meet others.

All the sororities worked very hard to put on the best rush possible. Each sorority works all year long for just three nights of parties. Rush activities consists of three nights of parties by each sorority and Bid Day. The first night are the informational parties, which last 35 minutes. At this party, girls have the opportunity to learn about financial responsibilities, philanthropies, and social functions. The second night is "skit night". Each sorority has their individual skit that they perform for entertainment. This night allows the sororities to show off the individual talents of its members. The last night of rush consists of Preference Parties. These parties are more serious than the others because they stress the importance and values of sisterhood. It's easy to see the fun in it all, but the real memory of sisterhood is revealed this night. After the Preference parties, the girls go to sign the preference cards, which indicate their first and second choices. If the girl's and the sororities' choices match up, the girl is usually extended a bid, or an invitation to join the sorority. Joining a sorority is a difficult decision, as well as which sorority to join. Sororities aren't for everyone, which is demonstrated in the fact that 41% of our female students are in a sorority. However, many sorority members would not give up the rush experience for anything. "Sorority rush is a great opportunity for sisters and rushees to meet many new people" said Sigma Sigma Sigma member Angie Richardson.

Rush was definitely a success this year. Congratulations to everyone!

TAKING 'EM DOWN

Fraternity rush at Presbyterian College is a time when freshmen and upperclassmen try to decide which fraternity is best for them. There are six fraternities from which they may choose: Alpha Sigma Pi, Kappa Alpha Order, Pi Kappa Alpha, Pi Kappa Phi, Sigma Nu, and Theta Chi. Rush involves several nights of parties which are open to all rushees.

The first night is typically the information night. This is the night when the rushees learn about each fraternity; its history and traditions. The following couple of nights involve getting to know the brothers through a variety of theme nights, from Casino Night to Playboy Bunny Night. After several theme nights the brothers host their invitational smokers. This is the night when the brothers and the rushees really choose what they want.

Then comes the most exciting time of rush...Bid Day. As masses congregate around the front of Neville Hall, the rushees enter and decide whether or not to accept their bid. The rushees then barrel out the front doors as they are mobbed by their new brothers.

After weeks of hard work by the brothers and rush girls, fraternity rush has come to a close for yet another year.

Many students have used this tactic since the dorm locks were installed. That's what friends are for.

KNOCK! KNOCK!

Can you let me in?

It was said, "Change is the only constant," and that seems to be true even at P.C. The installation of the 24-hour dorm locks stirred up some debate at the end of last year's Spring semester and the beginning of this past Fall semester. Most of the men and women liked the new dorm locks even though they had their advantages as well as disadvantages. One advantage was the increased level of security felt around campus. It comforted many that not just anyone off the street could enter our dorms. Most people felt the dorm locks would prevent a problem with intruders but Heather Colet said, "Everyone, girls or guys, let almost anyone in if they say they don't have their card or they are a parent. We are not sure if they are supposed to be here or not." Another advantage was the ability of P.C. men to walk around the girl's dorms unescorted. Not all the girls see this as an advantage, but most of the guys do. Andrew Poor said, "Being able to visit who I choose in the girl's dorm is a very good idea. It wasn't enforced in the past, but we can't get into trouble for it now." A very obvious disadvantage is if a student leaves their card behind. Helen Weilder said, "It makes me feel safe but when I have a lot to carry, or I am on crutches it would be helpful if the door was propped open in the afternoons." Andrew Poor agreed by saying, "I like it, but it is an inconvenience when it is rainy or your hands are full." A major problem is for those students who live off campus and aren't allowed to get dorm cards. Sara Williams, a senior, said, "Because I live off campus, I can't go visit my friends unless I know they are there and can let me in. Last semester, when I lived on campus I felt much safer having them." Holly Nelson brought up a very interesting point. She said, "What if it's 2:30 AM and I am near Springs and begin to feel unsafe? The only place I can go is back to a girls dorm, across campus." Most everyone that lives in the dorms is somewhat comforted by the new dorm locks even if they are inconvenient. — JENNIFER CRABTREE

LIVING...

In a Sterile Environment

Reynolds Infirmary was recently changed to a dormitory for the 93-94 academic year. Reynolds is a women's dorm which houses thirteen students: two seniors including one resident assistant, one sophomore, and ten freshmen. Except for the seniors the residents are three to a room.

One resident described it as a pleasant living environment. Reynolds is a small quiet place which allows students to get to know each other better. However, living in Reynolds does have its drawbacks. Because Reynolds is considered a temporary dorm, the administration has been slow in making some changes. A few of these include an outside phone located by the door and additional electrical outlets in the rooms.

The Wellness Program is a key aspect of Reynolds. Andy Altizer, the resident assistant, and the residents created the program at the beginning of the year. The Wellness Program meets the first Monday of each month and focuses on at least one of five aspects of health: spiritual, physical, social, emotional, and intellectual. The meetings range from self-defense to healthy eating and controlling stress. Reynolds was used as a trial for the Wellness Program because it was a concentrated living area. The president of Reynolds described it as "...basically a prototype for the Wellness concept." If Reynolds is converted fully back to an infirmary, the program would be moved to another dorm or one floor of a dorm.

The Wellness Room is a planned addition to Reynolds and the Wellness Program. The World of Wellness, which it was named in a contest by the residents, is a room with computer information, books, and magazines covering health issues. Although located in Reynolds, it will be opened to all students. The president of Reynolds, Melissa Boyett, believes "Reynolds allows those of us living here to learn about and practice healthy living in all areas of the wellness concept, thereby helping us develop a routine of wellness in our daily lifestyles." Despite the Wellness Programs foundation in Reynolds, it has been promoted throughout campus.

As president of Reynolds, Miss Boyett has the same job as other dorm presidents. "I'm a delegate to the Women's Council," she explained, "and through that, I can relay wishes and needs to the S.G.A." She believes safety is not a problem for students living in Reynolds. Although there were no external lights at the beginning of the year, after it was mentioned to the administration, lights were up in a matter of a few days. Residents have keys to back up security locks. There are no doors without security locks. If given the opportunity Miss Boyett said she would "definitely live here again." — CHÁSE THORTON

A FACELIFT FOR THE BOOKSTORE

The bookstore in Springs Campus Center is in for a facelift. It was decided by the administration to add on to the bookstore during the spring semester of 1994. According to Skip Zubrod, the school treasurer, the addition should be in use at the end of the spring semester 1994, or at the very latest the beginning of the 94-95 school year. Mr. Zubrod said the decision to add on was made in response to student requests for additional services for the bookstore. The addition will allow the bookstore to widen the aisles between the shelves of textbooks. The bookstore will also be able to carry magazines, newspapers, and novels which are not offered at this time. Mr. Zubrod also commented that the bookstore will begin carrying convience store items for students who would otherwise have to drive to gain access to these items. "It will allow us to offer more things that students want rather than just things they need for classes," said one bookstore worker.

The construction will be done by the contractors working within the Maintance Department which will help lower the costs of construction. The addition will be a welcome change to the Springs Campus Center. — WARREN SLOANE

Jack Robertson and a worker put some finishing touches on the bookstore addition.

The bookstore addition only took a matter of days with the hard work from maintance.

EASTERN EXPANSION

With the addition to Templeton, its parking lot was occupied with some different vehicles besides cars.

As the year comes to an end, many students have noticed the construction that is taking place at the east end of the campus near the gym. The school received a generous gift from a group of donors who specified that the money be used to add on to one side of the gym. The new room will be about 6000 square feet and be able to be partitioned into smaller meeting rooms. Mr. Zubrod said that the building will be open to all campus organizations and not just the athletic department. The plans for the building include a kitchen which could be used for a variety of different activities. Mr. Zubrod said the building should be complete by September 1st. Once completed, Mr. Zubrod hopes that the new meeting space will be used for SUB events, sorority meetings, and religious groups. This addition will allow students not on a varsity team to use Templeton gym more frequently than would normally be the case. As always, gifts to the college are appreciated by everyone here and this gift will make a difference in student's lives. - WARREN SLOANE

The Templeton addition is just one way that P.C. will be expanding in the years to come.

The addition to Templeton will allow the gym to be used more frequently by a larger group of students.

OUT WITH THE OLD AND IN WITH THE NEW

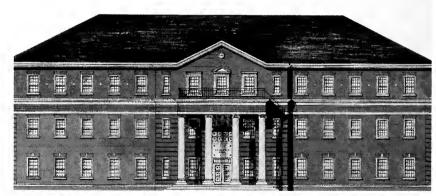

By the time I arrived a P.C. as an incoming freshman, Spencer dorm had already become an enigma. Rumors were floating around about the possibillity of renovation and the reasons for its closing in the first place. I was also enlightened as to its great potential for vandalism and newly developing opportunities in borrowed furniture. I have spent many a night at the Waffle House being entertained by epic tales of the adventures encountered in Spencer Dorm. Stories of fantasy that range from an entire room filled chest-high with mattresses, a kind of Beauty Rest trampoline, to full size leather couches being pushed out of second story windows.

Legend has it that the occupants of the dorm were informed well in advance about the future desertion of their beloved home, so they trashed it. They were granted permission to be over run by their primal urges and they proceeded to gut the building, leaving behind crude murals, doors and walls covered with most interesting graffiti, and whatever furniture they deemed unworthy for transport. By the end of my freshman year, it had been said that Spencer Dorm was to be internally renovated and used for administration offices. And I can not say that I was too surprised when I returned the following year to discover that it was still standing, silent and unchanged.

But the dorm did eventually come down. It was demolished during the summer of last year while most of us struggled with our jobs. Thus, we arrived this year, fully expecting to see the same cracked front steps and lifeless windows as before, only to be shocked by the addition of a grassy clearing in the area in which the building once stood. A grassy clearing that promptly transformed into a shoe sucking swamp. This odd lack of Spencer was quickly and sadly forgotten. A dorm, potential administration building, den of vandalism, surplus furniture outlet, or a huge gaping mud hole, all of these titles apply to the now demolished dormitory. A building that will be sorely missed and a legend in its own time, Spencer Dorm, we salute you. — JOSH HORNOR

NO DISAPPOINTMENTS HERE

P.C. students were treated to a double dose of fun this year as SUB presented two different bands for Spring Swing. The night began at 7:30PM in Belk Auditorium with the twangy bluegrass and country flavors of Woodstick. Concert-goers spent their time dancing and stomping to the rural Tennessee sound of the band. Woodstick played for an hour, and was a surprise to all those who attended. SUB president, Warren Sloane, admits, "I had a great time. Woodstick really surprised me. I didn't realize Country could be so much fun." Many of the estimated 300 attendees agreed, and they were pumped for the next set.

Jupiter Coyote, the headlining band for Spring Swing 1994, had the crowd excited and back on their feet for the next two hours. The Macon based band performed original songs with a heavy southern rock influence. Dave Grieve said, "I used to laugh about Southern Rock, but these guys changed my mind."

Hootie and the Blowfish were originally scheduled to play, but they were not able to because of the California earthquake. So SUB met the challenge and found two wonderful bands for the event. When Laura Severensen, the coordinator of Spring Swing '94, was asked how she felt about the bands, she replied, "They were no Hootie, but they were great." Indeed, everyone attending Spring Swing '94 was pleased and they are sure to remember the event for a long time. — MIKE WEAVER

AN ABUNDANCE OF SMILES

This year P.C. was fortunate to celebrate the 20th Anniversary of Special Olympics. This year's games took place April 16, 1994. A very strong group of volunteers organized the games under the leadership of junior, Alison Vaughan. The team that backed Alison up this year are: Brian Franklin and Melanie Johnson for Field Events. Chris Infelise for Food, Stphanie Childers for Awards and Ceremonies, Jennifer Fouse for Downtime Games, Ann Dver for First Aid, Melinda Diller for Volunteers, Reid Bover for Clean up, Catherine Martin for Hospitality, and Suzie Garrard for One on One Volunteers.

This year's Olympics had 215 atheletes. Participants came from all over Laurens and Newberry County. Laurens Junior and Senior High were represented as well as M.S. Bailey Elementary, E.B. Morse, Newberry High School, Evergreen Skills, Whiten Center, and others. They participated in events such as the Tennis Ball Throw, Softball Throw, 400 meter dash, 100 meter dash, 100 meter walk, wheelchair race, shot put, and long jump. Each participant trains with a teacher or coach all year to compete in the games. For many, they wait all year for this one day. To see how proud they all are and how special they feel after they complete an event and receive their placement ribbons is unbelievable. These special people have no hard feelings if they don't come in first. They did their best and that's always first place.

P.C. is able to host Special Olympics because of the great turn out of student volunteers. This year 175 P.C. students volunteered and also there were 75 Clinton High School volunteers. A lot of students agree that they receive more from volunteering than the athletes do from participating. Chris Infelise commented, "Even though I just handed out drinks it gave me a chance to talk and get to know the athletes." A big part of the Special Olympics is just giving these special people a little piece of yourself. Whether that piece is just some of your time, a hug, or a smile, they will be sure to reciprocate it ten-fold. Cecilia Barksdale summed the day's experience by saying, "Having grown up with a disabled mother, I know the trials and tribulations of being handicapped. So, when I see people who haven't experienced that feeling interact with disabled people, it gives me a good feeling inside. I think everyone should be involved with Special Olympics and see what other people have to deal with in life. I enjoy being with the children and adults very much, and I believe everyone should experience that feeling." - TABITHA TERRY

Coffee, poetry, and music are not the only things found at Inklings. Student art is a part of the surroundings.

After several months of planning, painting, building, cleaning, and working, PC's own Coffeehouse (INKLINGS) was born on April 20, 1994. Plans for INKLINGS were started by a group of students led by Erin Salyer. These students worked with the Student ACtivities office in Springs Campus Center to make INKLINGS a reality.

INKLINGS was started to give students, faculty and staff a place to gather informally to talk, discuss issues, read poetry, listen to music, and, of course, drink coffee. The inaugural event was a poetry reading by student and faculty poets who contributed to PC's literary magazine, Figs & Thistles.

The name "INKLINGS" comes from an informal group of literary friends who met in the rooms of C.S. Lewis at Magdalen College, Oxford, from the early 1930's through the decade of the 1940's. Besides C.S. Lewis and his brother, the group included J.R.R. Tolkien and Charles Williams. Meeting on Thursdays at 9:00 p.m., the Inklings heard and criticized members' literary efforts. The name remains something of a mystery. However, Tolkien once wrote: "It was a pleasantly ingenious pun in its way, suggesting people with vague or half-formed intimations and ideas plus those who dabble in ink. - RANDY RANDALL

ANOTHER WORLD

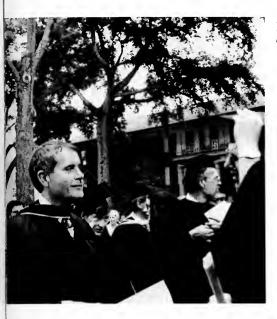

Dr. Ron Burnside, who was voted 1994 Professor of the Year by the Senior Class, gave one of the speeches at Graduation.

The soon-to-be graduates march onto the Front Plaza for the 114th Commencement Service.

Dr. Gillespie smiles as he bids some of his best gradutes farewell.

Just another of the perks of being a senior — the Senior Dinner. Stacy Sumerel and Julia Eccles enjoy one of the last, and best, meals at CDH

The date was May 7, 1994 — the date that the Class of 1994 has been looking forward to for four long years. Mixed emotions seemed to be the theme for the day. Excitement for the change of lifestyle and new independence associated with the change, and sadness at leaving friends made at one of the best colleges in the South.

The 114th Commencement Service was only the second to be held outside. Although clouds threatened to force the service to move to Templeton Gym, the good weather prevailed to allow a wonderful service. As the graduates walked in line to the Front Plaza and took their seats, they prepared themselves for the speakers, just as they had four years ago in Belk Auditorium as nervous, eager freshmen. Camisha Clarke, voted Outstanding Senior by the Class of 1994, gave an inspirational speech to her classmates. Following Miss Clarke, Dr. Ronald Burnside, the Professor of the Year, also spoke.

Although the emotions experienced by the members of the class of 1994 differed, one thing that is certain these graduates of this class have received an excellent liberal arts education. For the first time. PC was included in The Fiske Guide, which selects 315 college and universities across the nation every year. Also, PC received the highest rank ever in the U.S. News & World Report's edition of America's Best Colleges. As one senior said, "It will be difficult to leave this close-knitted family atmosphere of Presbyterian College. I will miss my friends and members of the faculty, however I feel that they have prepared me for any obstacle in which life will thrust upon me."

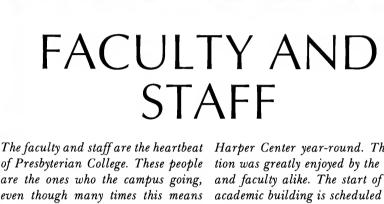

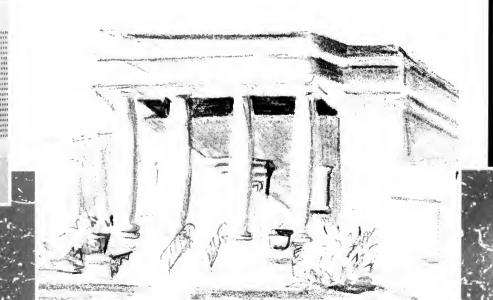

of Presbyterian College. These people are the ones who the campus going, even though many times this means working behind the scenes. From the smiling faces of the Blue Ladies to the helpful nature of the professors, the administration and staff of the college are one of the aspects that makes PC a favorite.

The 1993-1994 academic year was the first year the classes were held in Harper Center year-round. This addition was greatly enjoyed by the students and faculty alike. The start of the new academic building is scheduled to begin the summer of 1994. Although there is a wide variety of jobs held by the faculty and staff, the goal of all of them is the same — academic excellence.

DR. CELIA FRYER

For Dr. Celia Fryer, teaching seemed to be a natural choice. "I wanted to bring a culture that was a part of me to U.S. students," she says. The culture that she is speaking of can be traced back to her childhood. Dr. Fryer was born in Guatemala and spent her early life in Colombia and Costa Rico due to the fact that her parents were Baptist Missionaries. As a result of this upbringing, she is always looking for the opportunity to travel. She is currently planning, and looking forward to, a trip back to Guatemala and says that she feels "very loved and accepted by the Guatemalan people".

She attributes her desire to teach to her own undergraduate experiences at Mars Hill where she received her B.A. She found the most rewarding aspect of her undergraduate life to be her involvement in CSM, a Christian organization similar to BSU. Sharing her parents' sense of compassion, she went on missionary trips to Black Mountain Respiratory Hospital and inner-city Atlanta through this organization. After Mars Hill, Dr. Fryer went on to continue her education at U.N.C. Chapel Hill where she received her B.S. and Ph.D. She has been an educator for sixteen years.

Dr. Fryer laughingly claims herself to be "a very boring person," but her interests contradict her. She is a reader who also enjoys crossword puzzles and arts and crafts. Camping and hiking are hobbies she enjoys as well. And, as can be expected, she loves to travel. Her hero is Rigoberta Menchu who recently won the Nobel Peace Prize for defending the rights of Guatemalan Indians. As Dr. Fryer puts it, "I admire anyone who stands against governments and higher powers for the rights of people who cannot defend themselves."

Intelligent and articulate, Dr. Fryer is a dedicated representative of the excellence that P.C. strives for in its faculty. She is truly a welcome and highly respected addition to Presbyterian College. — Josh Hornor

DR. BILL BREEDLOVE

A new face was seen at P.C. this year. Dr. William Breedlove was hired as an interim professor for the 1993-94 academic year to fill the vacancy left by the retired Dr. Hunter.

Bill, as he insists his students call him, has a laid back approach to teaching that relies more on class discussion rather than lecture to relate material to his students. However, Bill himself may actually be a little too laid back. As he puts it, "I want to retire at the age of thirty-two and become a game show host." His teaching style and willingness to listen to students has made him a favorite among students that he has taught.

Bill feels he has a different way of looking at many social issues because he was a criminal justice major as an undergraduate before switching to sociology for graduate studies. When asked why he switched, his reply was, "A little bird told me to. Well, actually, it was a big bird. I mean a really, really big bird."

Bill claims one of his happiest moments in his year at P.C. was when Florida State, where he received his Ph.D., won the national title which he was on hand to witness.

ory Goeckel was his father. "My father influenced me to go to school," he recalls. Growing up in rural Kansas on a farm, where milking cows was a regular part of farm life, his father believed it was very important for him to get an education.

He attended Marymount College of Kansas and graduated with a double major in math and biology. After considering veterinarian school, Mr. Goeckel pursued the field of math. He received his Master Degree from Kansas State University. Schools where he has previously taught are Marymount College and Mohawk Community College.

A husband, and father of twins, Mr. Goeckel enjoys spending time with his children and with his family. "They've been

One of the factors that influenced Greg- very supportive of me while I've been working on my doctorate. If it hadn't been for them, I wouldn't have gotten this far," he explained. While teaching at community college, he met his wife. "My wife says teaching is my better aspect," Mr. Goeckel said.

> One of the reasons he was attracted to P.C. was the fact the college reminded his of his alma mater, Marymount, which was a small, liberal arts college. He also appreciated the fact that research was not compulsory for professors. His plans include completing his doctorate and working towrds the requirements of tenure. Mr. Goeckel feels P.C. is a "good, solid, wonderful, place to work. Everyone is supportive. The students are first rate." - Chase Thorton

A Closer Look at... DR. CRAIG HILL

There is a recent addition to the Department of Religion and Philosophy. His name is Dr. Craig Hill. Formative religious experiences as a teenager led Dr. Hill to become serious about his faith. He approaches theology from both intellectual and spiritual viewpoints.

Dr. Hill attended Illinois Wesleyean University, where he received his Bachelor of Arts degree in religion. From there, he went to Garrett-Evangelical Theological Seminary at Northwestern University. After earning his Master of Divinity degree and working for a time in a local church, he attended Oxford University, where he received a Doctor of Philosophy degree and served as Chaplain of Christ Church College. Prior to coming to Presbyterian College, he was also a Henry R. Luce Fellow at Yale University Divinity School and a visiting professor at Indiana University.

What about PC appealed to Dr. Hill? "The college's relationship to the church, the opportunity to teach New Testament (my field), and the larger Clinton community, which struck me as a good place to raise a family. The people I met on my first visit are the sort of people — students and faculty alike — I would like to get to know." In many ways, Clinton mirrors the Midwestern towns in which Dr. Hill grew up. He greatly enjoys interaction with PC faculty working in other academic fields. Most importantly, he identifies with "PC's self-understanding and purpose." Dr. Hill's hobbies include computer programming, ceramics, scuba diving, guitar, electronics, and collecting antique prints and furniture; he also enjoys a variety of music and movies.

As a professor of religion, Dr. Hill's primary goal is "to help the faithful student to be thoughtful, and to help the thoughtful student to be faithful." This approach coincides with his own view of religion, wherein "a strong intellectual component contributes to the religious quest to find answers to life's major questions." Additionally, he strongly encourages students to value excellence, not only in academia but in every facet of life.

Each year, new students prepare to tackle the challenges of classes, activities, and social life that Presbyterian College deals out. Seniors, who have gone through the ups and downs of college life, prepare to move on to the "real world" in which new challenges will be faced and conquered with all the skills and talents acquired at PC. Many students prepare to immediately enter the job world while others go one with their education in medical school, law school, or in a master's program. Many seniors approach graduation day with a mixture of emotions, ranging from sadness to elation. As seniors take their final exams and write their final research papers, many take a long look at what they have learned and what they have become while at PC. — by WARREN SLOANE

What do GDH, Pondo Schuffle, Blue Ladies, Wa-Ho all have in common? These are just a few of the terms that are second nature to PC students. After a few weeks on campus, these terms and many others become part of the lingo of all PC students. The friendships that these students make with each other are just part of the reason that PC is so special. These are the people that we have lived with, cried with, and shared our college years with. The diversity of people on the PC campus provide us a way to exchange new viewpoints and make friends.

At P.C., students are given the opportunity to meet other students from all areas of the country, and around the world. They were all friendly people who were called by their first names, not social security numbers.

ANDREW WELLMAN

If there was such a title as a well — rounded P.C. student, Andrew Wellman would definitely be contending for the honor. At P.C., Andrew has shown himself to be a gifted student, athlete, and leader. He has found time to do it all, illustrating many of the highest levels of academics, service, and recognition available to a college student.

When Andrew first came to Presbyterian College from Sandy Springs, Georgia, he did so because of a basketball scholarship. Before entering college, he was always involved in sports, and put academics and other activities second. Andrew relates "I did a lot of growing up. Basketball was the first reason I came to school here, but now I can say that I got so much more out of school than a scholarship and chance to play ball."

Indeed, Andrew did find that Presbyterian College was his niche for personal growth, and he discovered new aspects of himself through different social, academic, and service activities. Andrew worked closely with SVS and participated in the Little Brother Program at Thornwell. Academically, he excelled as a biology major, and became a member of three honorary fraternities: Beta Beta Beta, Sigma Kappa Alpha, and Omicrom Delta Kappa. And he cannot speak enough praise of his fraternity, Theta Chi. "Theta Chi really opened my horizons, and it's where I found my friends. It gave me a chance to open up aside from academics and basketball."

Andrew wants everyone at Presbyterian College to remember him as "someone who gave his all, who always gave his best." Of his future, Andrew is looking towards medical school He admits that he is not ready to leave P.C., and will dearly miss his friends at school. He says, "I'm going to miss my friends, mostly, and the comradery of the basketball team. I'll even miss GDH." Presbyterian College will miss Andrew, too. It's hard to replace an individual who has given so much.

MASON GORDON

When thinking of college seniors, there aren't many that come to mind that contribute both on and off the plyaing field. Presbyterian College's Mason Gordon has not only conquered the books, but has also made headlines in athletics.

Mason is a native of Due West, S.C. and is majoring in Political Science. As a high school student at Dixie High School, he excelled in football. Mason was being recrutied by a number of colleges and universities, until he received an injury to his knee. Some of those offers ceased, but PC was persistent. Mason credits his mom for influencing him to attend PC and continue playing when injuried seemed to overwhelm him.

The adversity of dealing with the various injuries has also influenced him and made him stronger. Mason worked extremely hard to rehabilitate himself and his hard work has paid off. Mason has received many awards such as three Offensive Player of the Week certificates, SAC- 8 Player of the Week (October 23), Don Hansen's Football Gazett Regional Player of the Week (Ocotober 23), and first team All-Conference. To top those, the senior tailback was named South Carolina's College Player of the Year, beating out athletes at Clemson, USC, The Citadel, and Furman. Gordon has also won the Blake "Kilo" Watts Rushing Award.

JASON WEST

Jason West knew P.C. was the place for him. He wanted a small town that resembled his own. After visiting P.C. he recalls, "It hit me. There was never any question where I would go to college.'

Jason has been busy on and off campus. He has served on the Judicial Council and STAC (Student Alumni Council), sang in choir, and during his first two years played in the Blue Thunder Pep Band. Jason was also involved with the Blue Stocking, serving as editor-in-chief. Off campus he is a member of his county school board and just happens to be the second youngest elected official in the

Without a doubt Jason believes editing the Blue Stocking for the last two years has been the "most enjoyable thing on campus." He appreciated the good staff and volunteer effort involved in putting together the Blue Stocking. "The best times I've had," he recalls, "were in the Blue Stocking office at 2:00-3:00 in the morning. These are the times I'll miss most."

Jason knew he wanted to work with the Blue Stocking when came to P.C. He had previously worked with his high school paper, which was recognized as being one of the best in the state. The Blue Stocking was "one of the things I set out to do," Jason explained. He started out as a staff writer and worked his way up. In his spare time, when not traveling to school board meetings, the Blue Stocking editor likes to golf. Jason also enjoys reading. A few of his favorite authors include Faulkner and Hemmingway. His favorite book is As I Lay Dying.

Wanting to sing in the choir, he decided to join his senior year. During the choir's Broadaway Cabaret, Jason sang a part for "The Music Man" and, to the delight of the audience, dance in a grass skirt to a song from South Pacific.

The accomplished senior thinks P.C. can benefit students the most by staying relatively small. "I think P.C. is getting too large. It has an ability to produce friendships between students and professors. The day we lose the individuality is the day P.C. no longer exists," Jason believes.

A political science and history double major, Jason plans on attending law school. His ambition has always been for the law.

"P.C. has opened my mind to a lot of different things," he said, "and taught the value of how to be independent. P.C. has been good to me. I hope I will always be good to it." The professors he values the most are Dr. Dean Thompson and Dr. David Gillespie. Dr. Gillespie taught him during his freshman year. He never had Dr. Thompson in a class, although he had helped with Blue Stocking. Through his many academic and volunteer achievements, Jason has certainly earned the respect of P.C.'s professors and students.

GREEK LIFE

Laughter, friendship, and good times are common occurences with the greek system at Presbyterian College. With six national fraternities — ΠKA , $\Pi K\Phi$, ΣN , $\Lambda \Sigma \Phi$, KA, and ΘX , and three national sororities — $\Lambda \Delta \Pi$, $\Sigma \Sigma \Sigma$, and ZTA, on campus, greek life is an important part of many students' lives. Over forty percent of the total student population is affiliated with a Greek organization. The last Spring Rush was held this year, as the faculty voted to hold rush for the next five years after fall break.

The Order of Omega, with Dr. J. David Gillespie as the advisor, is a new Greek Leadership Honor Society. The purpose of this organization is to allow leaders from both sectors of the Greek community to work with each other for the good of the campus.

ORGANIZATIONS

Despite logo-bearing T-shirts and not-so secret rituals, organizations at PC not at all exclusive. Organizations provide a wonderful opportunity to meet people and to learn more about common interests. With some clubs boasting over one hundred members, it is rare to find a student who is not involved in any clubs. Participating in different organizations provides a perfect way to get involved and enhance a liberal arts education at the same time. As one junior quotes, "I can't imagine my life at PC without organizations. I have my best friends through the clubs I have been involved with over the past three years."

t's a bright, sunny spring day and all the flowers are Lin bloom and coming down the sidewalk from the administration building are a prospective student and family acompanied by a Stirling. It's just one of those common things we've come to expect at PC. The Admissions Office has found many PC students to be invaluable tools in the proces of recruiting prospective students. Students are divided into three groups after being interviewed.

Stirlings give tours on a regular basis or whenever prospective students are on campus. Caledonians give tours on special occasions such as Scholarship Day or Accept Day and they also host prospectives overnight. Highlanders, who were inactive this year, provide a behind the scenes service. They write letters and make phone calls to prospective students to make them feel more at home to PC. All together these three groups provide a one-on-one geniune attitude to prospective students that allow them to see what Presbyterian is really like — a home away from home.

he Student Government Association, Student Union Board, and the Judicial Council worked hard to make the 1993-94 school year an organized and successful year. The Student Government Association worked diligently with such committees as the independent examination committee, the food committee, and the constitution committee. Small but important achievements were made in GDH through the help of SGA and the language in the professors handbook about exams was reworded.

The Student Union Board provided the students with some excellent entertainment this year. Fun Flick, magicians, and even a game show could be found on the campus this year. In

As usual, the Winter Formal, Spring Swing, the Kickin' Country Classic, and trips to the Builtmore House were provided for everyone's enjoyment.

The Judicial Council maintained PC's honor code and system well this year. Three trials were held and justice was delivered. The council also did an admirable job indoctrinating the freshman during orientation this year. Chairperson Marie Youmans also presided over the signing the Honor Roll.

The IFC and Panhellenic Council are the governing bodies of the Greek system on campus. They insure rush rules are followed and help facilitate relations between the various fraternities and sororities. In addition, they sponsor Greek Day, a fun-filled day of activities to promote unity among all of the fraternities and sororities.

The Minority Student Union serves to promote the unity and advancement of minority students of Presbyterian College. They sponsor events such as Black History Month programs, SWIFT (a mentor program), community service work, and lectures from professionals once a month. They also have a Social Club that is part of the larger group that sponsors culturally diverse events. When these three groups are put together, no student whether a minority or Greek should be able to find a social activity that they can get involved with.

Ahh, The Theater: Of Stage And Life!

C has two stages on its campus. One of those stages can be found in the Harper Center. The other stage, however, is the stage of life. Dealing with money is always a reality of life, and for PC, one of the organizations that dealt with that reality on the stage of life is the Student Alumni Council. Throughout the year, in addition to bringing awarenes to PC's alumni association, the Council raises money for various causes here on campus. Through the Exam-Aid Kit Fund Raiser and raising money for the Senior Gift, the council provides valuable services.

In addition to the stage of life, PC has an extremely capable theatrical stage. The PC Players and Alpha Psi Omega, the theater honor fraternity, produce several plays a year and The Diviners and Museum were among those plays this year. In addition to producing plays they also strive to promote cultural awareness among students. Together these organizations provide essential roles in the PC community for both the theatrical stage and the stage of life.

BREAKING RECORDS

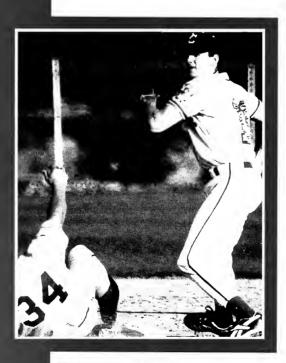

The 1994 season was a new era in many ways for the PC baseball team. First, former head coach Tim Corbin left in August, 1993 to take the job as an assistant coach at Clemson. Corbin revived a program that had been nonexixtent for twenty years prior to 1988, when Corbin came to PC. Taking his place was Doug Kovash, who had been at Emory University since 1991. Also, the Blue Hose entered their first year in NCAA Division II.

The 1994 squad returned 17 letterman but lost three starters and three pitchers. With PC's switch to the NCAA Division II, the squad had their toughest schedule ever with Armstrong State, USC-Aiken, Georgia College, Coker, Wingate, Ctawba, and Elon, all of which were ranked nationally at some time during the season.

After winning four of their last five games, the Blue Hose's season ended when they lost to Elon, the number two seed, in the first round playoff game which determines who goes to the SAC tournament. It was the first time in three years that the Blue Hose did not advance to the tourney.

Next year's team should be even better than before with only four seniors gone. — EVERETT CATTS

DRIBBLING TO SUCCESS

We've all heard the old adage which says that facing adversity builds character, and then we've heard the story of the formation of a diamond, exemplifying the message of the saying that out of the heat and pressure of unbearable conditions an object of incredible beauty is born.

By tapping éver so slightly into the immeasureable riches stored in our heads, we could view the 1993-1994 Lady Blue Hose basketball team as the diamond which has been chiseled out of a rock of frightening and potentially devastating occurrences, the first of which involved fifth-year head coach Beth Couture. The scare began in the early morning hours of a day last fall just prior to the onset of basketball season. As Coach Couture returned to Clinton from Greenville for an early workout with the basketball squad, she was involved in a car accident which, according to paramedics, could have easily been fatal, although luckily she only received minor injuries.

At times throughout sports history, teams have been motivated to brilliant performances by tragedy, and yet the Blue Hose were not grasping for a miracle to kindly a great season. This year's squad has all of the ingredients needed for success; experienced seniors to provide leadership and consistent performance, developing and dedicated juniors and sophomores to add depth and offensive punch, and up-andcoming freshman who are already contributing noticeably (in the words of junior Leigh Irwin) "bring this team together. CATCHING THE EXCITEMENT

Following the 1992-1993 campaign, in which the Blue Hose were 27-5, won the conference, and advanced to the SAC-8 and District 26 tournament finals, and the NAIA National Tournament, the 1993-1994 men's basketball team was expected to repeat as SAC-8 Champions.

The Blue Hose, picked first in the conference and 17th in the NCAA Division II (pre-season), returned eleven lettermen and three starters, led by senior guard Andrew Wellman, who averaged 13 ppg and hit 47% of his three-pointers as a junior and was a pre-season All-American in the Division II report. Also returning were center John Lloyd, who was on the 1993 All-SAC Tournament team, and guard Ernest Holiday, a scrappy defender who ran the floor at the point as a sophomore. Gone from the '92-'93 was Bret Jones, who led the team in scoring and rebounding, and was an Honorable Mention All-American.

Unfortunately, the Blue Hose did not fare as well as last season and finished 14-13. In South Atlantic Conference play PC was 8-6 and tied for second in the SAC-8 rankings. In their first year in the NCAA Division II, the men's team had a tough schedule, including teams in the USC-Spartanburg Tournament (where PC was third) along with Wofford, Lenior-Rhyne, Mars Hill, and Division I power Georgia Southern. - EVERETT CATTS

VOICED Enthusiasm

Neither rain nor cold weather could dampen the spirits of PC's dedicated and enthusiastic 1993-1994 cheerleading squad. Countless hours of practice and hard work goes into being a Blue Hose cheerleader. They make the stunts and tricks seem easy with their grace and easy-goingness. With basketball and football alike, they serve their purpose well — to inspire the crowd and get involved with the game.

Not only the crowd recognizes the dedication of this year's squad. "This squad has worked very hard and has come a long way," comments coach Susan Polson. Not only do the cheerleaders have to keep up with a strenuous physical work-out, they must keep up with the course load. A C average must be maintained by the cheerleaders.

STYLE AND UNITY

After two straight 4-7 seasons, Head Coach John Perry and the 1993 PC football team hoped to improve and return to the tradition of winning football.

With seven starters each returning on offense and defense, the '93 squad had experience on both sides of the ball. The esperience paid off as the Blue Hose went 5-6 and finished tied for third in the conference with a 4-3 league ledger. But the record did not show everything. Four of PC's six losses were by a touchdown or less.

One of the many experiences PC has was Mason Gordon. The senior tailback rushed for a school record 1401 yards on 255 carries and scored 15 tochdown, one short of tying another school record. Gordon's 127.4 yards per game average was also a new school record. His best performance of the season came against Mars Hill, when he rushed for a school 254 yards on 36 carries and scored four TD'S. For his success Gordon was named to the All-Conference first.

When Gordon wasn't providing the offensive punch, Steve Gorrie was. Gorrie, a fullback, was the team's leading receiver with 499 yards and rushed for 909 yards on 183 carries. The tandem of Gorrie and Gordon comprised of most of PC's 230 rushing yards per game average. Surprisingly, Gorrie was not on the All-Conference team.

Gorgon and Gorrie would not have been making long runs if not for PC's experienced offensive line. Five of six linemen returned. Two of the linemen, John Bradley, a guard, and tackle John Edwards were named to the SAC-8's first and second team, repectively. Bradley was also named to the All-South region second team. Another lineman, Senior tight end Brad Jones was a second team All-SAC selection.

Despite the experience, youth contributed to PC's offensive success. Freshman Randy Sullivan quater backed an offense that had been sluggish in past year, passing effeciency mark. For his effort, Sullivan was named SAC-8's Offensive Frshman of the Year. — EVERETT CATTS

FORE!!

With only two returning lettermen from the 1993 squad, the 1994 golf team lacked experience. But with seven new players and six freshmen, the Blue Hose were young but did not lack talent.

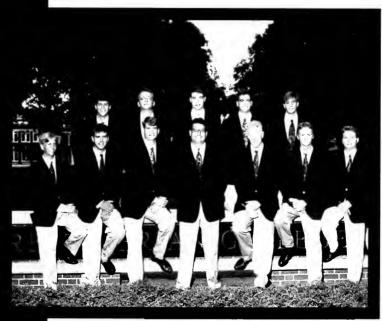

After a fall season of five matches, PC competed in five more matches in the spring. Following a ninth-place finish in the NationsBank Intercollegiate, the Blue Hose had their best performance of the spring when they placed fourth in the 21-team Cheerwine Challenge of the Carolinas.

Second year coach Tommy Addison commented on his team's performance, saying, "I'm very excited about the way we played in the tournament. We ran into some trouble but never gave up, and that is what it takes."

As each tournament passed and the Blue Hose golfers improved, PC earned the repect of all the other teams in the region, especially the conference teams.

Leading the golfers were Jim Kent, Gabe Southards, Chuck King, and Perrin Powell. Kent led the team twice in tournament play and was third twice. Southards also had two top team finishes to go along with his two second-place finishes and one third-place finishes. Next was King, who once placed first out of all PC golfers, second twice and third once. Rounding out PC's team leaders was Powell, who led the team once and was third in another tournament. - EVER-ETT CATTS

SPORTS FOR FUN

Athletics at PC are not just limited to the varsity players. The PC Intramural Program, headed by Chris Patterson, provides a valuable oportunity for students to join together in friendly competition. Approximately 80 percent of the student body played one sport or another, proving that this program is greatly enjoyed by the student body. With the variety of activities ranging from football to indoor soccer to sport trivia, there is something for everyone. "Intramurals are great because it gives students of all different athletic ability the chance to participate," commented junior Derrick Roberson.

Not only students were pleased with how the 1993-1994 Intramural year went. Coordinator Chris Patterson says "I feel like the 1993-1994 intramural year was very successful. With the additions of a sand volleyball tournament, a statewide soccer championsip, and a flag football challenge with Newberry, our intramural program has continued to thrive since the building of our complex. I would like to congratulate all of the winning teams and thank the students at PC that participated in record numbers again this year."

No matter who you talk to, everyone agrees that Intramurals are a integral and successful part of student life at Presbyterian College.

Assistant Director of Student Activities CHRIS PATTERSON is involved in every aspect of the Intramural Program, from refereeing to scheduling to participating.

EXPERIENCE

The expectations were high for the 1993 PC Women's Soccer team. After capturing the conference co-championship in the previous year, the '93 team returned ten of eleven starters from the '92 squad that was 14-7

Among those returning were four All-Conference player-Missy Butler, a threetime All-American and the 1992 SAC-9 player of the Year; co-captain Kathleen Dowd: Christi Flack: and Charity Brazeal. the 1992 SAC-8 Freshman of the Year. Senior Stephanie Smith and co-captian Micki Soderberg also returned.

After scoring 980 goals (second in nation) in 1992, Brian Prucell's 1993 team was defense-oriented, allowing only .95 goals per game. The Lady Blue Hose defense was led by three players - Flack, a stopper; Soderberg, a defender; and Heather Frederick, a sweeper. PC's defense was also paced by freshman sensation Emily Campbell, a goalkeeper. Also, all eleven players helped on defense.

If they were going to repeat their success the Lady Hose had to beat many of the teams on their tough schedules. The schedule included the likes Thomas More, TriState, Barry, the 1999&1993 Devision II National Champions, Division 1 power Mercer, Coker, Queens, plus SAC foes Elon, Lenior-Rhyne, and Catawba. The quad did continue their success, going 13-5 and 5-2 in the conference. good for third place. With their prominence came national recognition, as the Lady Hose were ranked nationally a number of times during the season.

The women's team also hosted the SAC Tournament, giving them a homefield advantage. After beating Carson-Newman in a SAC Playoff game, PC lost to Catawba, the eventual tournament champions.

The team got some consolation when five players - Bulter, Dowd, Flack, Soderberg, and Frederick - were named to the All-Conference teams. Butler, a forward, was a first team selection and, for the second straight year, was honored as SAC-8 Player of the Year. The four other players were second teamers. Butler and midfielder Carey Bailey were named to the All-Tournament team. - EVERETT CATTS

KINGS OF THE CONFERENCE

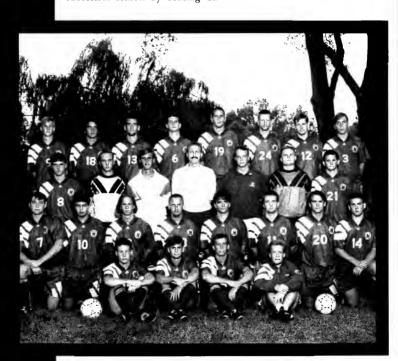

With only five starters back from the 1992 team that was 15-4-3, won the conference's regular season tile, and were SAC Tournament finalist, the 1993 Men's Soccer team was not expected to win the SAC-8 crown again. But Head Coach Ralph Polson led his team to a 14-3-3 overall record, and their second SAC-8 Tournament title in three years.

The men's team closed its season by winning the SAC Tournament. After crushing Mars Hill 4-1 in a SAC Playoff game, PC got revenge on Lenior-Rhyne in the semi-finals. The Blue Hose defeated the Bears 1-0, the team that beat PC in the finals of the '92 tournament. PC capped off their successful season by beating Catawba 2-0 in the finals.

Although they won the tournament, PC's Woodall was the team's lone All-Tournament selection. Even though the team did not receive an invitation to the NCAA Division II National Tournament, no one was disappointed in the overall performance. But who knows what's in store for next year's team. —

SWINGING INTO ACTION!!

With only one starter (Minda Griffin) gone from the 1993 squad that was second in the conference, the 1994 women's tennis team returned five starters and six letter winners. PC was led by three seniors-Dina Padgett, Stephanie Hunt and Jennifer Miller. Also, a recruiting class of three talented freshmen helped five the Lady Blue Hose the depth they needed to go far in their first season in NCAA Division II.

But success would not come easy. Donna Arnold's team had a very tough schedule with the likes of Berry, Emory, Valdosta State, Francis Marion, Wofford, UNC-Charlotte and Elon-all of which were ranked regionally or nationally.

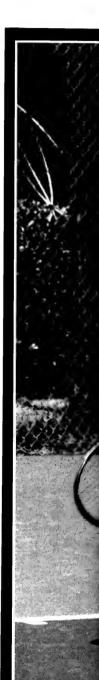

Despite the tough schedule, the lady netters (ranked 4th in the East region) flourished, going 14-7 overall as depth showed in the success of the players in the lower slots. At the number five singles slot sophomore Jennifer Brim was unstoppable with a record of 20-1. In the number six singles slot was Miller, who was undefeated (21-0). In doubles Brim and Chrissie Bolt paired up to go undefeated (21-0) as well.

After going 5-5 during the first half of the season, the lady netters were hot, winning nine of eleven matches. — EVER-ETT CATTS

MEN'S TENNIS

With four starters gone from the 1993 team that was second in conference, the Coach Bobby McKee's 1994 team was in a rebuilding year. Of the four starters who had graduated, two were All-Conference, and one of the two was an All-American (Mallory McRae).

Despite the key losses, the Blue Hose returned seniors Mark Necaise adn Scott Ambrose, who led PC in the top two singles slots and the number one dubles slot. Three other lettermen-senior Paul Roof, junior Tyler Van Leuven and sophomore Davivd Kemp (All-Conference in '93)-returned and started.

There were even more changes as the Blue Hose began playing in a new match system because of PC's switch to NCAA Division II form the NAIA. Under the new match system, the team plays in doubles first, with the squad that wins two of the three doubles matches receiving one point. After doubles both teams play their singles matches.

Just like in past years, the Blue Hose had a tough schedule with Furman, Wofford, Queens, Kalamazoo (1993 Division III National Champions), Mars Hill and Elon.

Without the depth that the 1993 had had in going 17-7, the '94 squad went 9-8 overall and 4-3 in the SAC-8, making PC the third seed in the conference tournament. With the lack of depth, Coach McKee had two walk-ons (Will Sharpe and Ike Dickey) starting at the number five and six slots.

The Blue Hose suffered another blow to its depth when Kemp quit the team in the middle of the season.

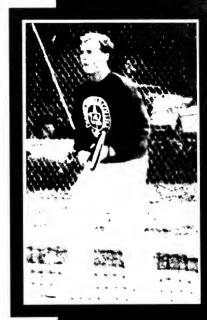

Necaise and Ambrose led the Blue Hose with singles records of 10-7 and 9-8, repectively. In doubles the pair was 11-6 in their slot(#1). In the conference tournament PC was third as the seniors were third in singles and finished second in doubles.

Taking third in the SEC tourney were Van Leuven (#3) in singles and Roof and Sharpe(#3) in doubles. Also, Roof (#4), Sharpe (#5) and Dickey (#6) all were fifth in singles. Taking fifth place in doubles was the team of Dickey and Van Leuven (#2). — EVER-ETT CATTS

TRACK

NEW HEIGHTS

Like in the past years, the 1994 team had no lack of talent and a large amount of success. That talent showed when, only after a week of success, the squad fared well in their first meet of the season, the Pembroke State Invitational. Out of 6 teams competing, PC finished first with a total of 92 points ahead of Pembroke State with 78 points and Francis Marion with 62 points. This gave PC the highest finish they have received at the "Braves Track classic". Leading the Blue Hose in what was a good opening effort for the team was Matt Glenn with first place finishes in the 400 meter and 800 meter runs.

The Francis Marion Invitational was held March 26, 1994. Although conflicts in scheduling had several of the Blue Hose Track members unable to attend the Track meet, PC had a strong team effort against the five other teams participating. This effort allowed the Blue Hose to have their highest finish at Francis Marion since the Invitational began in 1983. PC finished second behind High Point Univeristy, but 29 points ahead of Host Francis Marion University. With only Keith Moore's win the shot put, and the 4 x 100 Relay victory by Randy Sullivan, Willie Johnson, Lyndon Bell and Chris Thrope, everyone on the team had to make strong contributions for a strong team finish.

PC's 2 home meets were dual meets with Morris College. Voorhees College had planned to participate but was unable to attend. The two meets were preparation meets for PC to prepare for the conference championships the following weekend. The outstanding performances during these meets were by Matt Glenn, Randy Sullivan, and Chrise Thorpe.

The Track and field season ends with the Carolina's championship. Each team member tries to be in a position to reach their peak performance at this meet. The Blue Hose team had personal best performances by 12 team members during the meet. PC was awarded the third place trophy behind High Point University, who was second, and Pembroke State Univeristy, who won the championship. Jamie Moses received first place honors with a victory in the Pole Vault. Matt Glenn led the Blue Hose with victories in the 400 meter run adn the 800 meter run. Also, Matt's anchor leg of the mile relay team was one of the most exciting Coach Owens said he had ever see. "Matt is a very hard worker and has great running form. He is an exciting runner to watch and has gained a strong reputation among the other coaches and runner.

PC ended their season with their awards dinner at Terry's. Awards were given to Jason Whitener for Most Improved, Jason Whitener and Brian Johnson for the Coaches Award, and Matt Glenn for the MVP Award. - COACH MIKE OWENS

AN ACE OF A SEASON

After dominating the South Atlantic Conference for the last six years under the direction of Coach Beth Couture, the 1994 Women's Volleyball team faced a somewhat uncertain furture for the first time in quite awhile.

Although Presbyterian continued to be blessed with the exceptional ability of Coach Couture, some may have wondered if the young squad which wore the garnet and blue in 1994 would be able to achieve the greatness that previous teams had know, which included three District Regular Season championships, one District Tournament title, and several national rankings.

Behind the leadership of upperclassmen Dionne Williams, Jennifer Smith, Kelly Brown, and Kelly Pope, the Lady Hose shattered all doubts and continued the tradition of volleyball excellence at PC. The younger players, a group which consisted of five freshmen and five sophomores, surpassed expectations and developed into a powerful unit of confidence and relatively consistent performers. The result? A squad which posted a final record of 33-8 and captured not only the SAC Tournament trophy but also advanced to the first round of the NCAA Division II Regional tournament. The Lady Hose, who finished second in the conference behind Elon, won the SAC-8 Tournamen, in style. - MAR-GARET ELLEN PENDER

GILLESPIE WINS SC PROFESSOR OF THE YEAR

When Dr. J. David Gillespie was named Presbyterian College professor of the year and then went on to be nominated for the CASE South Carolina Professor of the Year, he didn't think he was a contender. For the past two years, PC received the distinction of having the CASE SC professor of the year. He thought that there was no chance of there being a third. However, when Dean Moncrief announced to a convocation that Dr. Gillespie had won the distinguished honor, it came to no surprise as both faculty and students knew it was an honor well deserved.

Dr. Gillespie will tell you that he decided to becone a professor of political science for two reaseon: a professor named Dr. Richard Hoffman and his brother. When Gillespie was in his sophomore political science class he was taught by Dr. Hoffman, who in the words of Dr. Gillespie was, "...not a screamer. He believed in certain fundamentals of decency." One day when, then student, Gillespie stated that he didn't support the 1964 Civil Rights Act, Dr. Hoffman told him, "Sometimes, Mr. Gillespie, human rights are more importnat than property rights." În addition, Dr. Gillespie's brother was a minister at a desegregated church. Eventually, his brother was run out of town for his beliefes, and these events helped to form Gillespie's benture into political

Dr. Gillespies came to PC in 1979. One of the reasons he came was because, "...the campus has that traditional college look." He also admits that one of the reasons that PC is so special is becuase of the unique qualities found in the PC community. When he first arrived on campus and walked into the student center, Douglas House, he was amazed at how friendly both the faculty and students were to a stranger on campus, and knew immediately this was the place for him.

In his teaching endeavors as professor of political science, and past chairman, he believes that it is certainly possible to overemphasize the importance of political science. After all he states, "...politics can be a life and death matter, but the fun side of politics needs to be stressed." This is one of the reasons that he plays a selection from The Capital Steps to his American Poilitics classes everyday. Dr. Gillespie tries to not be overpreachy but does want his students to realize that there are certain fundamentals of decency.

Dr. Gillespie feels that included in the many roles of a prfoessor are the position of role model. This includes "...keeping your nose clean..." as he would say. However, Dr. Gillespie feels that he is not a particularly strong role model for his students. This is something many of Gillespie's students and the CASE would disagree with though. He also admits that he enjoys becoming close friends with some of his student, especially his advisees and political science majors. He is also quick to add that never should a student/professor friendship get in the way of grading.

In the future, Dr. Gillespie plans to do some traveling. He wants to go to Honduras and possible Russia once again Eventually he would like to write one more book in addition to his current book, Politics at the Periphery. Once he retires, he wants to travel with his wife, as that is one of their great loves.

It is no surprise at all to those who know and admire him, that Dr. Dave Gillespie was named CASE South Carolina Professor of the Year. For all the hard work and time he has put into both PC and his students it was an honor well deserved.
